TO VISIT AREA HIGH SCHOOLS

MISSOULA--

Thirty University of Montana law students will visit 18 Montana high schools May 1 as part of national Law Day activities being planned throughout the country.

Stephen L. Grobel, UM law student and coordinator of the program, said the discussions centering around this year's theme of "Help Preserve Good Laws, Help Change Bad Laws, and Help Make Better Laws" should be particularly appropriate in view of recent nationwide concerns with government and its laws.

"The presentations will focus on youth concerns with various laws and the potential for improvement in the legal system. The activities are being conducted in conjunction with the Law Day U.S.A. program of the American Bar Association," Grobel said.

Participating law students and the cities they will visit include:
